From the Dover Gazette.
THOUGHTS ON DEATH.

To die!—'tis but to rest
Free from all care and pain;
To sleep awhile upon earth's breast
And wake again;
To wake and bower of bliss
And floods of living light—
Joys known not to a world like this—
Day without night!

To die!—'tis but to cast
A heavy load away;
To blot the memory of the past—
To close a day;
A day—the life of man
Is but a point in time
Compared with that eternal span,
That life sublime,

That waits upon the soul—
When its dull clay is cast—
Above the countless spheres that roll,
Perfect at last!
Reveries gone,
Piercing the future through,
Knowing of all that time hath done,
Or time can do

Creation's mysteries
Are naked to its sight;
Its movements boundless space comprise
So free its flight.
Worlds veiled to it before
In myriads it can scan,
Possessed of wisdom's perfect store,
Shut out from man.

To die!—it is to drink
The soul of endless life;
Here we but hover on its brink
In toil and strife,
Thirsting in vain to slake
The fever of the soul—
The aspirations high that wake
And spur on control.

Loathing the chains that bind
Our thoughts to things of earth—
That prison in the human mind
Even from birth;
The mind that pants to learn
What nature's God hath hid,
And thoughts that ever vainly turn
To things forbid.

To die! alas for him
Who hugs the toys of earth,
Contented with the stream to swim,
A mark for mirth;
Who covets fleeting things
That still elude his grasp,
And to a joyless idling
Till his last gasp!

Alas! for such an one,
Who for the future fears,
When from the glass the sands have run
Of his brief years;
Who does not joy in death—
The pathway to his God—
Who values not a feverish breath,
A painted clod!

STORY OF A HUMORIST.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER, WRITTEN IN 1792.

Well, I have seen your friend, and find him to be exactly what you desired him as being, a humorist. He seems to have imparted much of that character to every thing around him. His servants are all admirably disciplined to second his whims, and his very furniture is, for the most part, adapted to the same purpose. 'This put me upon my guard; and there was hardly any thing in the room that I did not touch with apprehension. No trick, however, was practiced upon me; and as I found subsequently, I was indebted for such indulgence to one which was reserved for me at night, and which was such as perhaps all my English phlegm would not have enabled me to bear with patience. I escaped, however, being put to the proof, by the merest accident—the arrival of a poor Scotch surveyor, who was thought a fitter subject for the often repeated experiment. The Scotchman was treated with extreme hospitality; he was helped to every thing to excess; his glass was never allowed to stand full or empty for one minute.

Our entertainer was like the landlord described by Addison; the liquor seemed to have no other effect upon him than upon any other vessel in the house. It was not so with his Scotch guest, who was by this time much further advanced upon the cruise of intoxication than half seas over. In this state he was conducted to his chamber—a fine lofty Gothic apartment, with a bedstead that seemed coeval with the building. I say seemed; for that was by no means the case, it being in reality a modern piece of structure. It was of dark mahogany, with its four posts extending completely to the ceiling of the chamber. The bed, however, was not more than about two feet from the floor, the better to enable the party to get into it. The Scotchman, with a good deal of assistance, was soon undressed, and had his body deposited on this place of repose.

When the door was closed, I was for the first time made acquainted with the structure of the bedstead, which our host considered as his master-piece. Upon the touching of a spring, outside the door, the bed was so acted upon by a pulley, that it ascended slowly and smoothly through the four posts, until it came within two or three feet of the ceiling. The snoring of the Scotchman was the signal for touching the spring, and he was soon at the proper altitude. The servants required no instructions how to act. In one moment the house was in an uproar; cries of "fire! fire!" were heard in different directions. A pile of shavings was set in a blaze opposite the window where poor Sawney slept. The landlord's voice was continually heard, exclaiming, "Good heavens! save the poor Scotch gentleman, if possible; the flames have got into the room just under him!" At this moment we heard him full and below out. A sudden silence took place—every light was extinguished, and the whole house seemed to be buried in the most profound repose. The Scotchman's voice could alone be heard, roaring out, in the high dialect of his country, for assistance. At length two of the men servants, in their shirts, entered the room, with a candle just lit, and yawning, as if immediately aroused from their sleep. They found him sprawling on the floor. "O dear, sir, what is the matter with you?" "Matter!" says he; "why, isn't the house on fire?" "Not at all, sir." "What was the reason of the cries of fire, then?" "Bless you, sir, you must have been dreaming; why, there's not so much as a mouse stirring, and his honor and the whole family have been asleep these three hours." The Scotchman now gave up all credit in the testimony of his own senses. "I must have been dreaming, indeed, and ha' hurt myself by falling out of the bed." "Hurt yourself, sir—not much I hope, the bed is so low;" and by this time it had been made to descend to its first level. The poor Scot was quite confused; quite ashamed at disturbing the family; begged a thousand pardons; accompanied the servants to the door; closed it after them, and was left once more in the dark.

But the last act of the pantomime was not yet performed. The spring had been immediately touched on closing the door, and the bed was soon beyond the reach of our guest. We could hear him groping about, and uttering frequent ejaculations of astonishment. He easily found the bedposts; but it was in vain he could endeavour to get in. He moved his hands up and down. His leg was often lifted by way of stepping in, but always encountered the floor upon its descent. He uttered exclamations of surprise not loud, but deep, for fear of again disturbing the family. He concluded himself to be in the possession of some evil spirit. In short, when it was found, by his silence, that he had given up the task as hopeless, and had disposed of himself upon one of the chairs, the bed was allowed to slide down again, and in the morning Sawney could not but express his astonishment at not being able to find it in the dark.

DAVID HENSHAW, Collector.

CIRCULAR TO THE COLLECTORS OF THE CUSTOMS.
TREASURY DEPARTMENT, }
May 17th, 1834. }
SIR—The Department has been satisfactorily informed that invoices of merchandise, exported from the Island of Porto Rico, and imported into this country, are frequently made out in "Spanish dollars or gold," instead of the currency of the Island, which is denominated Maquina. In consequence of the foregoing representation, and, in order to put a stop to this practice, as well as others of a similar nature, that may prevail in other places upon this subject, it is deemed proper to call the special attention of the officers of the customs to the annexed provision of law, contained in the second section of the act of Congress, approved the 3d of March, 1801, "directing the mode of estimating certain foreign coins and currencies, and of making out invoices in certain cases," and to enjoin upon them to require a strict compliance with the requisitions of the law, in this particular; and, moreover, to take care that the instructions of the Department, heretofore given in relation to invoices being accompanied by Consular certificates, be duly observed. It is also requested, to state that the 20th April, 1833, make it necessary that the annexed section of law be complied with, in the case of articles liable to a specific duty.
R. B. TANEY, Secretary of the Treasury.

Be it enacted, That from and after the 30th day of June next, the invoices of all goods imported into the United States, and subject to a duty at valorem, shall be made out in the currency of the place or country from whence the importation shall be made, and shall contain a true statement of the actual cost of such goods in such foreign currency or currencies, without any respect to the value of the coins of the United States, or foreign coins which now are, or shall be by law made current within the United States, in such foreign place or country." THE BOSTON MORNING POST.
MONDAY, JUNE 16, 1834.

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSES OF CONGRESS—No. 164.

Washington, June 10, 1834.—The argument for adjournment grows hotter and hotter every day—and if the Whigs had not consented as they did yesterday, I am sure the most hard-hearted of them would have softened and melted under the eloquence, not of the God-like, but the Persian's God, the Sun. There are no sun-worshippers here to-day—I'll answer for them—they are all devotees of the shade and the grove. You will perceive that I have carried economy, regarding physical strength, into my very caligraphy, not intending to make a letter the thousandth part of an inch bigger than may be read with a microscope. It will save me much labor, but it may tax somebody's eyes. Thus much for the weather.

And now for the Senate. The debate on setting the number of copies of the Report from the Post Office Committee, continued till 6 o'clock, without being settled. But it was argued under Foot's Resolution; and of course the subject itself was not considered in order.

Mr Southard opened the debate, in a well-prepared speech, full of gall and bitterness against the administration.

Mr Grundy replied in defence of the department.

Mr Ewing followed, and went at length into his Report for argument and facts, and repeated pretty much the substance of what he read yesterday.

Mr Clayton followed him, and repeated some of Southard's and Ewing's arguments. It was all about contracts and extras, and his prophecies some years since. He thought the Post Office Department had better stop, and sink, than borrowed money constitutionally. The great error of Mr Barry was not borrowing of the U. S. Bank! He spoke of mail facilities, and contracts with printers. He bore down pretty hard upon Mr Grundy, and alluded to "the old firm of John Holmes, Felix Grundy, and the other gentleman," meaning his—majesty. He talked about the Blue Book, and the discrepancies between the sums named there, and the Postmaster General's Reports, and the Committee's, &c.

Mr Grundy replied—and alluding to the celebrated firm, said "it was well he dissolved with one of the firm, an old friend of Maine, in 1829, and he should not care how soon he was rid of the other from Delaware!" So poor Clayton got most woefully be-deviled by his own joke. There was but one convulsion of laughter in the Chamber, and Clayton himself had to join it in self-defence.

After he had given his antagonist a few more shots, Mr Forsyth followed, and made a brief argument against printing so large a number of the Report, stating that thirty thousand would cost 17,500 dollars; and that the substance of the Reports and all the facts would be circulated in a million of copies, while they were debating the subject; that the Senate would not get the printing done before the 20th instant; and that the Senators would hardly find time to frank thirty besides he thought not all the printing could be done before August, when Congress would have adjourned; moreover, if each Senator took his share, the people of Delaware would have a Report to five persons each, and New York one to five hundred—and Pennsylvania one to three hundred—rather an unequal distribution. In regard to the Postmaster's borrowing against law and constitution, he said there were two Presidents of the United States who owed their elevation to acting, in strong cases of necessity, against both; he alluded to Gen. Jackson at New Orleans; and to Monroe while Secretary of War, who borrowed a million without the authority of law.

Mr Webster spoke briefly on the subject; and gave notice that when the debate on the Appropriation Bill came up, he should interrogate the Chairman, Mr Grundy, on sundry points. He was for having a large number of the Report circulated; but did not indicate any. He replied to several points in Mr Forsyth's speech;—and was throughout his remarks temperate and guarded in his expressions.

The Senate adjourned, leaving the question where they found it in the morning.

The House is still in session (9 o'clock) on Moore and Letcher's case.

REIS EFFENDI.

The Post Office Report.—If the other portions of this Report are as erroneous as that which relates to our contract with the Department, the whole is a base deception. We will make a short statement of facts, to-morrow, which will convince the public that for every dollar we have received from the Department, it has had its equivalent.

From the N. Y. Daily Advertiser.

"The report discloses, that Mr Greene, of the firm of True & Greene, publishers of the Boston Statesman, is brother of Greene, the postmaster of Boston, who was formerly editor of the same paper, and that True & Greene have received about twenty-nine thousand dollars, for printing and for stationery furnished to the Post Office in New York, on the certificate alone of Mr Greene, the Postmaster."

From the N. Y. Times.

"We are authorized to say, and challenge contradiction, that True & Greene never received a single cent from any source on earth, 'for printing and stationery furnished to the Post Office in New-York.' If all the allegations respecting the Department are of the 'same kidney,' a single dash of the pen would annihilate the mass."

It is not true, as stated in Saturday's Post, upon the authority of the N. Y. Com. Adv., that the House of Representatives, on Tuesday, rejected the resolution giving Mr Moore his seat as a Representative from the State of Kentucky. The vote was upon the putting of the main question, which was decided in the negative, 112 to 108.

At a late hour on Wednesday evening, after a warm and protracted debate the House agreed to a motion made by Mr McKay, to commit the Report of the Committee on Elections, with all the amendments made thereto, to the Committee of the Whole, with instructions to report a resolution, declaring, in effect, that neither of the claimants was elected, and referring the election back to the people. The resolution was adopted, 113 to 109.

Jonathan Child, Esq. was elected Mayor of Rochester on the 9th inst. There was but one vote against him.

The Fourth of July.—Preparations are under way in all quarters for the celebration of this day. The Washington Society will dine at Concert Hall—the Workingmen and Mechanics, have had the promise of Faneuil Hall, but the Whigs are trying to get it away from them—how the contest will be decided depends upon the City Government. The Mechanics, however, will have a splendid celebration whether the Hall be taken from them or not—probably not less than twelve or fifteen hundred will join in it. Mr Robinson, of Marblehead, is to deliver an oration before them. The Whigs have met and passed long Resolutions, and appointed large committees upon the subject of celebration; how they will end the business, we will tell our readers when it is over. We like to see all men and all parties notice this day; every American should join in some public observance of its recurrence.

Gov. Tazewell, of Virginia, has appointed the respective court days in July, for the election of a member of Congress, to supply the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mr Stevenson. An earlier day was thought unnecessary, in consequence of the near approach of the adjournment of Congress. John Robertson, Attorney General of Virginia, and Gen. Jacqueline B. Harvie, both opponents of the national administration, are candidates.

A serious rencontre took place at Nashville, Tenn., on the 2d inst., between Gen. Mabry, a member of the Convention from East Tennessee, and his friend, on the one part, and John Nelson, on the other part—which resulted in the latter being shot through the body. The affair originated in a gambling transaction. There is a bare possibility that Nelson may recover, although the ball which entered just above the pelvis, passed quite through his body, and was cut out of his back, badly bruised, as if it had a rough passage.

Mr Thatcher's Memoir of Phillis Wheatley, published by Mr George W. Light, is a very interesting and neatly printed little volume. Mr T. is an agreeable writer, and has presented to the public, in this memoir, a book, which, while it amuses and instructs the mind, inculcates the best principles of morality and philanthropy. It is intended for the younger class of readers.

The Harvard Fracas.—The Grand Jury of Middlesex Co., assembled at Concord, have found bills of indictment against four of the students of Harvard University, supposed to be concerned in the recent disorders in that institution, but we are informed that the government has entered a noli prosequi.

An esteemed correspondent has sent us a communication, in reply to an article which appeared in a late number of the Boston Courier, but it is seasoned so high that we fear it would take the skin from our readers' mouths if we were to print it.

Nat. Hinge returned.—Mr J. S. Jones' humorous and satirical drama of the "Liberty Tree," is to be performed for the first time this season, with some new panoramic scenery, for the author's benefit. This drama has proved to be the most popular of Mr J's numbers, also that in which he unquestionably appears to the most advantage as a performer. Old Brown's Nat. Hinge, we doubt not, will be enthusiastically welcomed by the northerners, who will patriotically turn out in full force to join the muster at the Warren this evening.

Mr and Mrs Barrett commence an engagement at the Tremont Theatre this evening. The report that Mr B. had taken a lease of one of the Philadelphia Theatres, is incorrect.

The new tragedy, The Broker of Bogota, written by Doctor Bird, was produced for the first time, at the Arch street Theatre, Philadelphia, on Wednesday last.

Latest from the Mediterranean Squadron.—A letter to the Editors of the Journal of Commerce, dated "U. S. ship United States, May 1st, 1834," communicates the following particulars.

The frigate United States left Fort Mahon on her cruise for the summer, on the 22d of April, and arrived at Toulon on the 25th, from which place she was to proceed by Genoa, Leghorn, Naples, &c. to the Archipelago.

The U. S. ship Delaware, 74, bearing the flag of Commodore Patterson, was expected to sail on the 25th of April from Mahon for Toulon, to procure salt provisions, the store-ship from America, with the usual supply for the Spring, not having arrived at Minorca.—The frigate Constellation, Capt. Read, was at Toulon 1st May, waiting the arrival of Commodore Patterson. The U. S. schr. Shark, Capt. Paulding, was refitting at Mahon, after a cruise to Gibraltar, Tangier, &c. All was quiet in Toulon and the South of France. The Vice Roy of Sicily landed a few days previous to 1st May from a steamboat at Marseilles, and proceeded to Paris on a visit to the Court of St. Cloud. It is said that the special object of the Prince, is a marriage with the Princess Mary, the eldest of the unmarried daughters of Louis Philippe.

Dreadful Rencontre.—On Friday night, the 3d inst., two individuals named Edward Otis and Avery C. Bangs, alias Crandall, left the fishing ground at Ely's Landing, Lyme, in a boat, for the purpose of proceeding about one mile up the river. While on their way, a dispute arose regarding some trivial affair, which resulted very disastrously. No violence, however, was committed by either party, until they arrived on shore. They proceeded to the house of Otis' father-in-law, where they engaged in a scuffle, during which Crandall drew a knife and dreadfully mangled the person of his antagonist. His belly was ripped open, and his head horribly gashed. He was alive when our informant left the place. Crandall was immediately arrested, and is now confined in New London jail, awaiting his trial. This is another instance of the dreadful effects of rum drinking.—Norwich (Ct.) Repub.

Meteor.—The following account of the late meteor which was seen at Montreal, is by a correspondent of the Montreal Gazette, of the 31st ult.

The meteor, which was of an unusually large size, exhibited the usual appearance of a globe of fire, from which smaller particles were flying off, followed by a train of luminous appearance. For some time after the disappearance of the meteor, there was an exceedingly luminous cloud observed in the part of the sky where it had passed, very bright, and which was compared to a bluish flame. One person, fearing it might consist of meteoric fire, went so far as to turn his cattle out of his stables, fearing the fire would fall upon and destroy his buildings. Some men, who had passed the night in fishing on Lake Massawipie, were so alarmed at the continued round and luminous cloud, that they rowed for the shore with all possible expedition, fearing something, but not well knowing what they fled from. The meteor appeared to pass in nearly a vertical position over Sherbrooke.

Courtney's examination continued.—The evidence of a Mrs Ingraham, who testified on Saturday, seems to throw some light on the mode by which Daniel Hickey came to his death, and for whose probable murder Courtney is now held to answer. Mrs I. stated, substantially—"On Thursday night, between 12 and 1 o'clock, I heard a row in the street [Broad street], and raised the window to look out. I saw 8 or 10 men, who, by their language, appeared to be Irishmen, making a great deal of noise, and beating one man. The man got away from them, and went towards Mr Macnamara's door, where they got hold of him again, knocked him down, and jumped upon him. He called upon them to spare his life, for the sake of his wife and child. Shortly, a handcart was brought by two men, one of whom had on a green jacket, and light pantaloons—I should not know either of them again. The party then took the man by the collar and legs, and chucked him into the cart. As he fell in the cart, he gave a dismal groan—he laid motionless before they threw him in. The two men dragged the handcart down Broad street, [the most direct road to India wharf, where Hickey's floating body was found.] The men had no clubs—no moonlight—night clear—lamps burning.

Mr Ingraham testified, that he was out late that night, and when he came home, his wife told him that she believed a gang of men had murdered a man, and carried him off in a hand-cart.

Mr Barker testified, that on Friday morning, before it was known that Hickey was missing, he heard Ingraham, and some one else, talking about what Mrs I. had seen on the preceding night.

Micajah Burrill, on Sunday noon, in company with Mr Fagin, went up into the fourth story of Daniel Crowley's house, and found Courtney in bed—Fagin asked C. what had become of Hickey—he replied, that he had been taken up for fighting on the night previous, [Saturday] and sent to South Boston.

Dr McKean was of opinion that the wounds, on Hickey's face and head did not produce his death—but that he came to his death by drowning.

Several other witnesses were examined, but nothing important upon the subject was elicited. Courtney displayed considerable temper, and swore several times.—He appears to be a very fierce and brutally ignorant being, and was totally insensible of the mild, courteous and impartial demeanor of Justice Simmons towards him, during the examination. Nothing, however, has transpired to incutinate him, excepting his general violent character, and his false and contradictory statements, and a further examination has been ordered to be held on Saturday next.

William Shales pleaded guilty to the charge of being a common drunkard—"I own I've done wrong, and I'm sorry for it," said the rum penitent, alias the "tanned turkey." When the constable took him he overwhelmed him with thanks, saying—"I am glad you've got me—for I have not enjoyed a sober day for a year." He should have added—"nor my wife a quiet one;" for when the spell was on him, he was in the habit of kicking and wasting.

James Anderson, a red nigger, was charged with stealing a jacket worth $7.00, and offering to sell it to a dealer for $3.50. Jim replied to the evidence—"I don't deny that I wore the jacket out of the house, as I had been sick, and wanted something warm and comfortable—but I offered it for sale by mistake."—He probably intended to get something "warm and comfortable" with the $3.50; but his plausible account of the affair made no impression on the unbelieving bench, and he was committed for trial at the Municipal Court.

James McGary was observed by a watchman, on the Hill, to station himself in an alley, till a colored woman passed, when he sprang towards her like a tiger from his lair. The watchman, however, was quick upon the heel, and politely tapped Mac on the shoulder, just as he was about to encircle the Ethiopian nymph in his ardent arms. Enraged at the vexatious interruption, he threatened to dig out Charley's internal affairs; but, upon taking a second observation, he perceived that the watchee was big enough to eat him, and he surrendered at discretion, and slept out the night in jail.—$3.00 and costs.

Theatrical Fracas.—There was a real muss at the Albany Theatre on Wednesday evening. The difficulty arose out of the refusal of Mr Power to play to a thin House on Monday evening. Every thing went on well till Mr P. made his appearance, when a scene of uproar commenced, which continued till he entered into an explanation; in the course of which he said, "he regretted this inhospitality more on their account than his own." This only added fuel to the flame, and tumult, hissing, yells, groans, &c. continued till the end of the performance. No violence however was resorted to.

The "Spy in Washington," through the Courier and Enquirer, makes a great account of the circumstance that Congress appropriated twenty-six thousand dollars for "furnishing the President's house." Now we think the appropriation rather stinted, compared with that made by Emperor Biddle. He appropriated FIFTY-TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to furnish Webb's house, surely half that sum is not extravagant for the President of the U. States.—N. Y. Chron.

Advertisement Extraordinary.—To be sold for five shillings, my wife Jane Heeband. She is stoutly built, stands firm, and is sound. She can sow and reap, hold a plough and drive a team, and would answer any man that can hold a tight rein, for she is hard mouthed and headstrong; but if properly managed would either lead or drive as tame as a rabbit. She now and then, unless watched, will make a false step. Her husband parts with her because she is too much for him. N. B. All the body clothes will be given with her.—Eng. paper.

The monument erecting to the memory of the Duke of York, is a subject of continued satire and remark in London. The numerous debts he has left unpaid, and the many tradesmen who have been reduced to beggary through his means, are constantly made the object of severe, though just, newspaper paragraphs.

A statue of John Philip Kemble, in the character of Cato, has been placed in Westminster Abbey. The statue is in a standing position, with book in hand, repeating the passage, "tis the divinity that stirs within us."

Singular Excuse.—An old bachelor gentleman in a neighboring town, aged about 90, being invited to reside with a relative a short distance from home, politely declined, in consequence of the family cemetery being more convenient and near to the place where he dwelt.

At Philadelphia, on Thursday morning, Felix Mar- ray, convicted of murder, was sentenced to be hung.

POLICE COURT.

In the Senate, on Wednesday, after the presentation and reception of various petitions and memorials, and a short discussion of the resolutions of Mr Bibb, on the subject of the election of President and Vice President of the United States, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of the report of the Committee appointed to investigate the affairs of the Post Office Department, and were engaged upon that subject when the Washington papers went to press.

In the House, the contested Kentucky election was referred to a committee of the Whole, with instructions.

In the Senate, on Thursday, Mr Southard, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, introduced a bill to regulate steamboats, which was ordered to a second reading. Mr Webster, from the Committee on Finance, reported the bill from the House of Representatives, making appropriations for the civil service for 1834, with amendments.

In the House, the question of the Kentucky contested election was disposed of by the adoption (114 to 103) of a resolution offered by Mr Sutherland in Committee of the Whole, "that there be a new election for a member of this House from the 5th congressional district in Kentucky—it being impracticable for this House to determine with any certainty, who is the rightful Representative of said district."

Post Office Report.—We do not recollect to have seen a more violent party document than that which purports to be a report of the Committee of the Senate, alias the report of Messrs. Ewing, Clayton, and Knight, with the aid of the Bradleys, on the subject of the Post Office Department. Already are the archives of the nation disgraced with several inflammatory papers which have emanated from the Senate during the present session; but this appears to be intended to cap the climax. It does not bear upon its face one feature of candor.—Indeed, its only merit is, that it does not pretend to candor, nor refer to any adequate testimony in support of its assertions. The whole object is political. There is no hope remaining with the reckless leaders of that desperate faction which has gained the preponderance in the Senate, but by falsehood and misrepresentation. They have carried on the war against the President till the more candid and honorable of their own party have been disgusted with their madness. But, like the fallen spirits, the more desperate their cause, the more malicious and violent are their efforts. Having determined upon the destruction of the honest democracy of the country, they are willing to resort to any means, and to use any instruments, to effect their object—and more suitable instruments than Messrs. Ewing, Clayton, and the Bradleys, could not have been selected. None but a person regardless of principle and of veracity, degraded in the moral sense below all respect for private character or public virtue, could have answered the purpose of the faction. Such an one they have found in Mr Ewing; and such supporters have they found in aid of their principal, as Mr Clayton and Mr Knight, who must excite the blush of the smallest States in the Union, of which, one at least is known to be misrepresented. These men have called witnesses before them, without defining to them any cause—without specifying any object—and proposed to them questions concerning the private transactions of others, for the purpose of drawing their own slanderous inferences, and presenting them to the public in such light as might be calculated to make unfavorable impressions. If a witness is put upon his oath in a court of justice, he has a right to know the object of his examination; but in this case, no object is specified—all is dark and mysterious. If an individual is accused, the constitution guarantees to him the right of being not only informed of the charge, but of being confronted with his witnesses, and of being heard in defence. But here, every principle sacred to freemen is trampled under. Honorable citizens and highly responsible officers are accused by implication in the most unbecoming manner, and to see or to know who are the witnesses against them—they are not even informed that there is a complaint or a suspicion entertained against them; and when all testimony fails, the effort is made by false inferences to inflict a penalty worse than death—a wound upon their reputation.—Such proceedings, exhibited in the report of these chosen champions of detraction, are worthy only of the party to which they belong, and the chosen instruments of their execution.—Washington Globe.

Patriot Dollars.—The Lords Commissioners of the British Treasury, have caused an assay to be made at the Mint, of the weight and fineness of the coins of the South American States, and having found that they are "in every respect as valuable, or rather better in weight and fineness, than the dollars coined in Mexico before the separation of that country from Spain, and commonly known under the name of Pillared Dollars"—they have directed, that in future these coins shall be received "in the negotiation of bills and otherwise in the Commissariat Department, and in all payments to the Army and Navy issue," indiscriminately, with other foreign coins, at the same rate as has been fixed upon the old Spanish pillared dollars.—Jour. Com.

Raising of the Steam Frigate.—The hulk of the Steam Frigate which sank at the time of the melancholy explosion, two or three years ago, is now being raised by the authorities of the Navy Yard at the Wallabout. They have been engaged about six weeks, and have succeeded in getting about half of her above water.—The object is to obtain the copper which in immense quantities is attached to the remains, and which will much more than pay for the expense, while the possession of the place occupied by it for other purposes, is a desirable matter.—Brooklyn Adv.

Delaware and Raritan Canal.—We are gratified to learn that this important project has been completed, and the water has been let into the canal through the whole line. It is 43 miles long, 75 feet wide, and 7 feet deep, and will admit vessels of 100 tons. It has 14 locks, and a feeder of 24 miles, and was completed in two years and a half.

It is stated in the Lancaster Democrat that a child lately died in that neighborhood, in consequence of the sting of a locust—and the Carlisle Republican mentions the report of the death of two children in that county, from a similar cause. A report has been current for some days past that the death of one or two persons had been occasioned by the sting of a locust, in this city, but whether it has any foundation we are unable to say. The above instances, however, give it a probability.—Balt. Gaz.

A serious disturbance had taken place at Naples: it arose out of a quarrel between a gend'arme and a soldier of the Sicilian regiment. The friends of each espousing the quarrel, it became general, and for some time the worst consequences were feared, the affray taking place in one of the most populous parts of the town. About twenty were wounded on both sides, and three killed, before the disturbance was quelled.

We understand that an altercation took place yesterday afternoon between Charles P. Lenes, harbor-master, and Capt. Evans, commanding the schr. Celestine.—After some words, the former drew a pistol and shot the latter. The wound is believed to be mortal.—N. Orleans Bee, 29th ult.

Fire.—On Saturday evening week the dwelling house of Judge Cory at Augusta, Maine, was destroyed by fire together with stable and out buildings. His papers, books, and furniture were principally saved. The fire originated in the stable, but it is not known from what cause.—Portland Courier.

On Thursday the 5th instant, a violent storm of rain passed over this part of the country, says the Poughkeepsie Eagle, which we learn, caused in several places, a great loss of sheep recently shorn. We hear of several farmers who have lost from fifty to one hundred from valuable flocks.

At Cherax, on the 1st inst. a gale of a few minutes duration passed over that place, levelling trees, buildings and places in its course.

CONGRESS.

BY THE STEAMBOAT MAIL.

We have received, in the New York evening papers of Saturday, the Report of the Majority of the Post Office Committee. It occupies nine columns of the Com. Adv. We shall refer to it to-morrow.

The President, on Thursday, sent to the Senate the nomination of Messrs Taney, Butler and McLane, and that body were in convalece during the whole sitting.

Rail-Road Accident.—This morning, says the Philadelphia Gazette of yesterday, a fearful accident happened on the inclined plane of the Columbia Rail-Road, on the west side of the Schuylkill river. Several burthen cars, laden with iron, were passing up the plane, followed by a number of passenger cars, while other cars were at the bottom of the plane in waiting. The rope employed for raising the cars being insufficient to sustain the immense weight, broke, and precipitated the whole train upon those remaining below. The velocity of their descent occasioned an awful concussion; the passengers were thrown out in every direction, and many were horribly mutilated and bruised. The extent of the accident was not known when our informant left the spot, but three or four persons, dreadfully wounded, had been borne off to the hospital.—N. Y. Com. of Sat.

We learn with regret that Charles Baldwin, Esq. an old and respectable member of the bar in this city, died suddenly yesterday, at the inner table of the City Hotel, from an apopleptic attack. He sat down to the dinner table apparently in good health, but in a few minutes fell back in his chair and dropped upon the floor.—A physician was immediately summoned, but before his arrival Mr Baldwin had expired.—Even. Post.

From Kingston, Jamaica.—The packet ship Orbit has brought our files of papers to the 21st ult. The following are extracts from them.—N. Y. Gaz.

Mr Joseph Tyrrell has commenced an action against the Editor of the Jamaica Despatch, and laid his damages at £5000. Mr T. having been accused in said paper of ill-treating Mr John Scott.

The Jamaica Advertiser of May 20, says—The quantity of specie issued by the Receiver General on Saturday, appears to have given new life to the city.—Change being now afforded, complaints will necessarily cease.

Hector Mitchell, Esq., Mayor of Kingston, had been upset in his carriage, and considerably but not dangerously hurt.

The ship of war Forte, Com. Pell, had arrived at Kingston, from Barbadoes, with 90,000 pounds, in silver, which sum arrived there in the Belvidere from England.

The health of Mr McDuffie has much improved since his return to South Carolina. Having given up his intended sea-voyage, he was about to visit the White Sulphur Springs.

Lafayette Bank.—On Wednesday the books were closed for subscription to the capital stock (half a million) of the Lafayette Bank. There were subscribed 18,449 shares, amounting to $1,849,000.

New Orleans, May 29.—Yesterday was the hottest day that we have had this season. We are told that the thermometer stood at 92 in the shade at 2 o'clock.
